

24th International Project Week 2022
09th – 13th May 2022

Lecturer: Donald Bruce Ross, Jerry Gale

University/Company: University of Kentucky, University of Georgia

Country: United States of America

Systemic Financial Therapy

Content: Finances impact our lives and relationships. We learn from our parents and social context and it effects our partnerships and relationships. We will discuss how to intervene with individuals and couples as a financial therapist and to bring in cultural humility.

Methods: Lecture, discussion, practice, writing, video tapes, role plays.

Competences and skills to be acquired: Participants will learn about financial therapy, learn how to access it and learn skills for intervention and prevention. They will also learn skills for education, learn a money genogram, learn about social determinants of health and learn skills to address anxiety and fear about financial behavior.

Prerequisites: We will send several papers to read before class.

Language of instruction:
English