Project Teams & Gatka

Content:

Students will consider the challenges of managing project teams and assuring high performance, particularly when operating in a different value base. Students will learn about how project teams are formed and then develop into high performance teams through the practice of Gatka (Sikh Martial Arts)

Methods:

- Group work
- Case studies
- Articles, Video clips
- Questionnaires
- Teacher and student-led sessions

Competences and skills to be acquired:

Students will be able to:

1. Define project teams and consider their unique factors in relation to developing high performance teams.
2. Analyse and critically evaluate the drivers of project teams in various contexts.
3. Synthesise the roles of project teams.
4. Clearly define and apply the key stages of team project development.
5. Critically evaluate the impact of different cultural values on team performance through the practice of gatka.
6. Monitor and evaluate the effectiveness of leadership on project teams.

Prerequisites:

Students should have a basic understanding of business and organisations as well as why projects are undertaken. Sessions require physical mobility
